General Information

Since August 1st, 2012 university graduates with either a German university degree or a foreign degree that is acknowledged in Germany or a foreign university degree that is comparable to a German university degree may travel to Germany to search for a job. The job seeker visa allows a stay in Germany up to 6 months. Visa applicants are required to provide proof of sufficient funds for the entire length of their intended stay in Germany.

During the search for a job it is not allowed to start a job or self-employed work. However once you have found adequate employment and signed a contract you may change the job seeker visa into a residence permit for employment directly with the competent alien authority. You are not required to leave Germany and re-apply for a new employment visa at a German mission abroad.
